

Du kannst there is / there's und there are verwenden, um auf Dinge oder Personen hinzuweisen. Es entspricht im Deutschen es gibt ... / da sind

Wenn es sich um eine Person oder einen Gegenstand handelt, wird there is (short form: there's) verwendet, bei mehreren Personen oder Dingen steht there are.

There is a cat under the table

Unter dem Tisch ist eine Katze

There's ...

There are two cat's under the table

Unter dem Tisch sind zwei Katzen

Setze ein: There is (Kurzform: There's) oder There are.

- _____ a new boy in our class.
- _____ a dog in the car.
- _____ two children on the playground.
- _____ a concert in Nuremberg.
- _____ many ducks in the sea.
- _____ a bag on the chair.
- _____ a mirror on the wall.
- _____ children in the garden.
- _____ is an apple.
- _____ two tables in the living room.
- _____ many posters on the wall.

- There is (There's) a new boy in our class.
- There is (There's) a dog in the car.
- There are two children on the playground.
- There is (There's) a concert in Nuremberg.
- There are many ducks in the sea.
- There is (There's) a bag on the chair.
- There is (There's) a mirror on the wall.
- There are children in the garden.
- There is (There's) is an apple.
- There are two tables in the living room.
- There are many posters on the wall.